Costly Palaces . . .

The cost of schools is a burning problem in almost every American community. School taxes are at an all-time high, and rising. Even so, the classroom shortage is estimated at 200,000. And the school population increases at the rate of 1,250,000 a year.

These facts give weight to an impressive article in the September issue of The Reader's Digest. Written by Holman Harvey, its title is a clue to its point and moral — "Do School Pupils Need Costly Palaces?"

Mr. Harvey begins by describing two actual new schools. One is an attractive and excellent plant. It has 14 cheerful classrooms, is designed to accommodate 350 grade-school children, and was built at a cost of just under $400,000 or about $28,000 per classroom. The other has the same number of classrooms and handles the same number of children — but the cost worked out to around $80,000 per classroom, or practically three times as much.

Why was this so? The reason is simple. In the first school, one half of the entire space is given to teaching space — that is, classrooms. In the second school that is true of less than 25 per cent of the space. And this school is not at all exceptional in this regard. So, to quote Mr. Harvey, "While school funds are lavished on facilities befitting an exclusive club, America is in a desperate plight for sheer lack of classrooms." Then, to make a bad matter worse, "most of the school-teachers of the nation — the very root and branch of the solid schooling our children need — are trying to live on salaries which no self-respecting bank would offer a junior clerk."

Mr. Harvey quotes a recognized authority on school-house construction as saying, "The waste of taxpayers' money in school building is fantastic," and goes on to describe some examples. One recently built high school has a $750,000 gymnasium, and another a $300,000 auditorium. A projected $1 million grade school will have an auditorium with a three-stage theatre attached; a gymnasium, a library with an open fireplace.

teacher's smoking lounge, two stainless steel kitchens, and so on and so on. Maintenance costs will be extremely heavy. But soon the town will need another school—because of lack of classrooms.

In addition, Mr. Harvey finds, there are many needless wastes in schoolhouse construction. It has been proven that excellent schools can be built at far lower square-foot costs than are common today. This is done by the use of new types of plans, new materials, labor-saving techniques, etc. Multipurpose rooms, by reducing the number of separate rooms needed, are highly economical. Carefully planned schools, constructed of first-quality materials and with all the required facilities, have lately been built for about $10 a square foot and even less. Lavish schools may cost as much as $30 a square foot.

Mr. Harvey ends on a note of advice. Here it is: "since school boards are ultimately responsible to the citizens, you, as a voter, can put a stop to the endlessly harrassing increase of your school taxes if you'll act on the knowledge that pupils don't ask for or need the palaces that the architects dream up for them. Remember that our first need is for better-paid teachers—and for 200,000 new classrooms."

Several showers have been given in her honor by her friends during the past two weeks. Mr. Olson is popular among the people of Grayling. He was born here and well known to all our people. They will spend the winter in Minnesota and Colorado and may return here in the spring. Their friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

"HI, PARTNERS!"

THROUGHOUT MICHIGAN, some 50,000 girls and boys from upper elementary and junior high school grades are performing an outstanding service.

They are members of 2200 School Safety Patrols, a public interest activity sponsored by the AAA and its affiliate, the Automobile Club of Michigan.

These Safety Patrol members must be at their posts each day at least fifteen minutes before school opens, must stay on duty after school closes. Their loyal efforts have helped substantially to reduce fatal accidents involving child pedestrians in the 5-14 age group.

Michigan's Trucking Industry salutes these Safety Patrol members. Like them, the industry is doing its utmost to promote safety through rigid driver training programs, careful maintenance of equipment, and educational campaigns. So, to you girls and boys in the white Sam Browne belts we say, "Hi, partners! We're with you!"
